CAUCUS VOTE FAVORS DUNN AND RICHARDS

But Forty-two Votes are Cast at Last Saturday's Polling

ELECTION IS ON APRIL 4th

There were but 42 votes cast at the town caucus Saturday afternoon. Charles F. Richards gathered forty votes and no other candidate was mentioned for the town clerk job. Mr. Richards ability and experience in this office will no doubt find him running without opposition in this office.

Harold Gelstrup had practically no opposition for the office of assessor, getting 34 votes, while C. Van Patten and H. Grimm each got a single vote. Frank Dunn was shown he is a much desired candidate for re-election for commissioner of highways, when he received 37 votes.

The offices of justice of the peace and constable were overlooked by most voters and either William James or R. Stanley Thompson will be on the official ballot for constable, each receiving but a single vote, while the office of justice of the peace will be left open to the voters at the regular election.

The three committeemen to be selected were made in the choice of George White, who received seven votes, Elmer Brook received five and Robert Smart and F. Kennedy each received three. Smart has signified his desire of not serving another term, and Kennedy will no doubt be given the opportunity of being the third man to fill the committee.

The votes cast for nominations at the regular election to be held on April 4 were as follows:

For Town Clerk
Charles F. Richards	40
For Assessor
Harold Gelstrup	34
C. Van Patten	1
H. Grimm	1
For Committeemen (Three to be selected)
George White	7
Elmer Brook	5
Robert Smart	3
F. Kennedy	3
Charles F. Richards	1
Frank Wood	1
O. Hollenbeck	1
A. Savage	1
For Constable
E. Haye	1
Wm. James	1
R. Stanley Thompson	1
L. B. Congdon	1
For Justice of the Peace
Harry Isaacs	1
John Woodhead	1

Antioch Pupils Take Teachers' Examinations

A number of students from Antioch and vicinity were taking teachers' examinations at Waukegan Thursday and Friday under the supervision of Superintendent of Schools T. Arthur Simpson. Those taking the tests were Francis Gray, Fred Sheehan, Willard Chinn, Madelyn Sheehan and Anita Wilton, of Antioch; May B. Sheldon, of Grayslake; Margaret Winters and Grace E. Sheehan, of Wadsworth, and Mary E. Sheehan and Gertrude Winnis, of Lake Villa. The examination papers have been forwarded to Springfield.

Sunnybrook Sanitarium at Wooster Lake Destroyed

Sunnybrook sanitarium, a 50-room building located at Wooster Lake, was completely destroyed by flames, originating, it is believed, from crossed wires in the attic. More than fifty insane men and women cheered as the bucket brigade endeavored to combat the flames. The fire started shortly after noon on Friday and by the time Grayslake and Round Lake firemen could respond the immense concrete structure was practically in ruins. The estimated loss is placed at $50,000, and according to Dr. C. M. Paden, in charge, no insurance was carried.

Tax Books Closed

Tax books for the township were closed Tuesday and were returned to Waukegan on Wednesday, where delinquents will have to pay their taxes.

THOS. NELSON TAKES RAP AT "VOLIVALITES"

Before a gathering of about three hundred interested citizens at the opera house on Saturday night, Thos. H. Nelson gave some facts and arguments concerning Zion City and the present county political office holders. The attack was largely aimed at W. Glenn Voliva, Superintendent of Schools Simpson and members of the sheriff's office.

Mr. Nelson went on to tell of how the Voliva denomination is trying to crush the independents, or "non-Voliva believers," by making conditions so miserable for them that they will, he expects, leave town. Among the accusations are the public schools which the independents are largely attending. Mr. Nelson claims the teaching facilities inadequate and that the janitor was appointed flogger of the children by Voliva. The whippings were administered with a length of rubber hose split into fourths. These and many other deplorable conditions existed, he claims, with the knowledge of Superintendent of Schools Simpson, who, according to Dr. Nelson, failed to interfere because it was the wish of Voliva. Mr. Simpson has repeatedly denied any knowledge of such facts.

Mr. Nelson, although not being personally acquainted with Miss Alice Smith, of Lake Villa, urged the voters to support her and break the Voliva-Simpson combine.

Mr. Nelson told of attacks on his residence in Zion by the Voliva followers because he was preaching against the principles of Voliva in the Methodist church. Mr. Nelson said he appealed to the sheriff's office time and again for protection from these riots, which were frequent, and although some of them lasted as long as three hours the sheriff and his assistants failed to interfere, he says.

Mr. Nelson appealed to the voters for the support of Mr. Jack for probate judge.

Treasurer's Report Shows County Is Financially O. K.

Lake county isn't as badly bent as some people are inclined to believe, and according to a report submitted to the supervisors last week by LeRoy W. Bracher, treasurer. There is on hand the nifty sum of $199,496.58.

Base Ball Plans Being Arranged

Captain Moutatt, captain of this year's nine, was in Antioch Sunday making arrangements for the coming season. Ted Oaks, formerly of the Connecticut league and for nine months a twirler for the U. S. navy team in France, will be given a try-out with the local team. Several other stars are coming out to join the local forces and it looks like a good team will result. The first game will be played about April 15.

Opens Shop at Burlington

I. J. Suchy, formerly of Antioch, has opened a shoe repair shop in the rooms in the rear of the B. & K. shoe store on the corner of Geneva and Chestnut street, Burlington. He is a veteran of the world war and has had eighteen years experience in the shoe repairing business. He was in Antioch for two years.

"FORD DAY" TO BE HELD IN ANTIOCH ON SATURDAY, APRIL 29

Parade, Band Concert, Races and Games to Be Part of Program Arranged for the Day.

BARGAIN DAY AT ALL STORES

Plans are rapidly being rounded into shape for one of the greatest days in Antioch's history—"Ford Day"—which will be held Saturday, April 29. There will be a general celebration the entire day, with concerts, games, races and a Ford parade, which will include all makes of Fords, old, new dilapidated and floats. Prizes will be awarded to the winners of contests in the parade. Committees will be chosen to handle the various events for the day.

Headquarters for this great event will be held at the Antioch Sales & Service Station.

Practically all the stores in town will have interesting sales for the people in town that day. Moving picture theatres are contemplating running matinees that day, and there will be fun and enjoyment for the entire community.

Many of the merchants have already signified their intentions of donating prizes for various "stunts," the best ever offered for any event ever held in this community.

There will be a dance held in the evening by the Volunteer Fire Department and there will be something doing every minute for everyone.

At a meeting to be held in the near future, plans will be drawn up, committees appointed, and a program scheduling the events of the day, which will appear in full in a later edition of The Antioch News. A list of prizes and donors will also be published in The News.

Let's join in and make it a day to be remembered forever.

Antioch Woman's Club Notes

Miss Emily Crosby, representing the Mutual Lyceum bureau, of Chicago, presented to the Woman's club the opportunity to book a lecture course to be given during the coming fall and winter. The proposition seemed favorably received. A committee was appointed to take the matter under further consideration and definite action will be taken at the next meeting.

A letter was read from the district president urging the club to send delegates to a special meeting to be held on March 30, in the Fine Arts building, Chicago. This meeting is to be a woman's meeting composed of club women, church workers and other women's organizations, who are trying to promote clean and decent living and to uphold the things in life that are most worth while. To this meeting of Illinois representative women, the Salvation Army are to submit a report of moral conditions in the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois. This report is the result of two years of careful investigation on the part of an organization who are in a position to know so much of the immoral and evil conditions which are known to exist not only in Chicago, but also in the smaller towns throughout the state. In polite society these conditions are not discussed even though the fact is admitted that the very life of the Republic is threatened by the present day contempt of every principle of the Ten Commandments.

With Hamlet, all thinking people agree that "There is something rotten in Denmark." Every breeze brings the stench. Close our eyes as we will to these things—yet the facts remain. The Salvation Army workers are brought face to face with life at its lowest levels and they have prepared a report which in their opinion is of such importance as to demand the attention of mothers, teachers, club women, church workers and every one interested in the social and moral conditions now before us. Mrs. W. J. Darby and Mrs. W. W. Warriner were elected delegates to this meeting and the reports will be given at the next club gathering.

The committee in charge of the layettes for the work of the probation officer in Waukegan have about completed the work. Three complete dainty layettes will be sent to Miss Parmentier this week. In behalf of the committee we take occasion to thank the generous friends who contributed so many little garments to these layettes. There are so many little helpful things continually being done that help swell the sum total of the useful activities of the Woman's club. In the language of our president, "We are a small club—we are a young club—organized hardly more than a year,—and we are not a wealthy club—yet not with standing these facts we are not ashamed of our record and we hope to improve it as the years go by."

We noticed several high school girls who have accepted our invitation to become Junior associate members. We were glad to have them with us and we hope at the next meeting to enroll at least twenty-five more. Come in with us girls and hand in hand with the woman's club do your best to "brighten the corner, where you are."

The committee in charge of the proposed or hoped for Comfort Station after making a thorough and exhausting canvass reported it, utterly impossible to purchase or lease a site suitably located for the erection of such a building and equally impossible to lease a vacant room in the Loop district—because "there ain't any such animal." Confronted by such condition what else could be done but drop the matter for the present?

"Even Don Fernando Can do no more than he can do" and even the Antioch Woman's club can not build a Comfort Station in the air although we do plead guilty to having built castles in the said air.

However, we can promise the tourists and wayfarers, in Antioch that they are not to be left comfortless. Several prospects of a more or less private nature are said to be under way that will provide for their every convenience and comfort. By the time the "Call of the Wild" draws them from the city to our beautiful lake region these stations will be ready and placed at their disposal. "All is well that ends well" and Antioch has other needs that appeal to its club workers.

The committee was given a unanimous vote of thanks for the able and efficient services rendered.

The next meeting is April 3rd. An address will be given by Dr. Caroline Hedgers. The subject is "Child Welfare in General." A full attendance is urged. We are assured by our program that "Dr. Hedgers is just splendid and that no one can afford to miss that address. Come mothers and bring your daughters.

Antioch Town Team Wins From Lake Villa 39-15

Antioch town team defeated Lake Villa Thursday evening at the high school gym by a 39 to 15 score. It was a clean, fast game throughout, Lake Villa putting up a stubborn fight, but could not keep up with the local boys' speed.

Clyde Fields and Ralph James showed wonderful team work at forward, James making twelve baskets. Barthell played a stellar game against Lake Villa's star center. The few baskets made by the visiting five shows the stellar defense of Antioch's guards, Nabor and Ames.

This was Antioch's last game of the season and it is regrettable that the boys could not have started their season earlier, as each game played showed a decided improvement.

Unclaimed Letters

There remained unclaimed letters at the local postoffice on Monday, March 20, for Victor Born, Rev. J. H. Horton, Loyal Beran Class (Christ church.)

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, March 27, 1902
G. DeWitt Stanton has purchased 160 acres of land in Taylor county, Wis.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Radtke, Tuesday, March 25, 1902, a baby boy.

Elmer Stickle and family will move next week into the Savage home on Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Drury are spending a few days this week with their daughter, Mrs. Bell Longman, of Trevor, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. George Blanchard will move next week to Grayslake, where Mr. Blanchard will have more steady employment. They will be missed by a large circle of friends who regret to have them leave Antioch, but good wishes will accompany them to their new home.

One of the oldest landmarks in Waukegan was destroyed by fire, Phoenix Hall, or better known as the Opera House block, was wrecked to the extent of $25,000. One of the actors in "A Runaway Match Company" playing there was washing his trousers in a pail of gasoline, when a flame shot up from the pail of gas and after burning the actor, spread over the entire structure. Many other stores in the same building were affected by the blaze.

Plans are being made to have the Lake Shore electric trains run from Lake Bluff through Antioch to the state line.

Mrs. G. P. Manzer and Mrs. Dalrymple visited in Grayslake recently.

Miss Florence Watson enjoyed a vacation of a few days, from her school duties at Rochester last week and the first of this week.

Miss Jennie Kennedy visited with friends at Fox Lake last week.

Mrs. George Patrick's mother visited her last week from Salem.

Trevor society will meet with Mrs. W. Evans next Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Pullen, of Antioch, visited her daughter, Mrs. Jack Drom, last Wednesday.

For the election on April 1, H. Bock is running for assessor; J. C. James, Jr., for justice of the peace; C. N. Confer, village clerk; A. J. Felton, commissioner of highways, and L. M. Hughes, collector.

Nels Christian Jensen Dies After Lingering Illness

A life has just gone out which spanned a period of fifty-nine years and six days. Away in little Denmark, over the sea, was born, on March 12, 1863, Nels Christian Jensen. Educated in the schools, of his country, the lad grew to manhood in the place of his nativity. And there, at the age of twenty three, he married Miss Margaret Christofferson, on May 7, 1886. Just eight years after their marriage, they left their native land for great America to try their fortunes under the stars and stripes. After tarrying a few months at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, they came to Antioch, Illinois, living in the village for about three years, when they moved to a farm and until last fall have lived the strenuous life of the farm, where their two daughters were born and reared. Mr. Jensen's health had been breaking for some time, and after an operation last fall, it soon became evident that he was no more able for the work of the farm. In November they moved into the village where the departed, whose whole life was so full of a great desire for order and beauty, had planned and begun to work toward making a beautiful home, even as he had made a beautiful and fruitful home of his farm. It was not long until he was past doing much, even at this task he loved so well. And soon it became manifest that he who, as a father, had done so much to make a beautiful home for those he loved, was hearing the call of his Father, the Everlasting Father, who was about to install him in a home a thousand times more beautiful which his eternal Father had been preparing for him.

He was possessed of the sturdy virtues of a strong will, an incorruptible honesty, a deep seriousness of purpose, and a genuine sincerity in thought, act and speech. He has been known everywhere he has lived as a genuinely good citizen, trying to do his share to build up the community, the country and the world, always contributing with energy.

NEW ROAD UP FOR HEARING SATURDAY

Protests Will be Heard in Court for the Final Confirmation

ANTIOCH IN SECTION NO. 6

The hearing for objections on the proposed state road will take place Saturday in Waukegan.

At present there is no intimation of serious objection on the part of any of the property owners along the road. If any are made it will have to be on some point technically wrong with the ordinance or on the inequality of the assessment spread, which would be probably straightened out by the court, and will be only a case of delaying the improvement.

Mr. Russell, the county superintendent, says that after the court has confirmed the road improvement it will be a matter of two or three weeks to get plans and specifications ready for submittal to the state.

At this time the state will advertise for bids in conjunction with the town and when the town has accepted its bid for the entire improvement, the state will be ready to pay to the amount of the bid they receive. In other words if the town receives a bid for $75,000 for the mile through the village and state receives a bid of $25,000, this amount will be appropriated towards the $75,000, and contrary to general knowledge, the state will pay the contractor receiving the bids from the village direct.

Bids for sections 1 and 4 will be opened March 31st. This includes the section from Wheling to a point a little south of Libertyville. The other section is from Grand avenue south to a point near Grayslake. The section from Grand avenue north to the south limit of Antioch is section 5 and will be taken care of by the County bond issue with the state probably taking care of the overhead bridge.

Section 6 will be from the south limit of Antioch to the state line with the state taking care of the 18 foot road clear to the state line, and the property owners paying for the further improvement specified in the ordinance.

It is probable that the state will not make any improvement at the crossing north of town, leaving this a grade crossing.

Section 5 will be built by the county under the supervision of the bond issue and with a favorably legislature body under the Small regime, will probably be reimbursed for part of the $125,000 expenditure contemplated and this could be used for further improvement in this section.

Ex-Service Man for County Sheriff

The candidacy of Edward Ahlstrom for sheriff seems to meet with popular approval in all sections of the county. The general feeling seems to be that a change in this office is about as the present officials have practically had control of this office for the past 24 years. Mr. Ahlstrom is a practical business man having been engaged in the electrical contracting business in Waukegan for years and only after the earnest solicitation of hundreds of his friends did he consider the entering the race for sheriff. His record for integrity of character and honesty in business cannot be impeached and he comes before the people of Lake County with clean hands and promises that if elected he will fulfill the duties of his office with the same fidelity and honesty of purpose that has characterized his business career.

Mr. Ahlstrom is an ex-service man who answered the call of his country in its time of need and the voters of the county will not necessarily show their appreciation of what this boys did when it comes time to vote. It must not be forgotten that the women are to vote at the coming primary April 11th and upon their choice will largely depend the issue.

The women so far have registered bravely for the ex-service men in the elections that have already been held.

A Man To His Mate

By J. ALLEN DUNN

COPYRIGHT BOBBS MERRILL CO.

"HE IS DEAD!"

Synopsis.—Littering on the San Francisco water front, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sailing schooner Karluk. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsen. Simms recognizes the blind man, calling him Jim Lund. Lund accuses Simms of being a physician and demands that Simms declare himself. Simms declares himself a physician, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karluk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold field which Lund has discovered. Peggy, Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsen, who is a physician as well as first mate, drugs Rainey. Awakening from his stupor, Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsen informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karluk, and tells him he distrusts Carlsen, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey agrees to act as Lund's "eyes." Rainey is made second mate. Captain Simms is ill and the navigation is entirely in the hands of Carlsen. At the latter's suggestion a shooting match is staged and the sailing hunters exhaust their ammunition. Carlsen shows his skill with the pistol and Lund does some astonishing shooting "by sound." Sandy, the ship's boy, is swept overboard and is rescued by Rainey, who thus wins Peggy's admiration. The captain gets worse. Sandy tells how Carlsen is stirring up trouble over the division of the gold. Carlsen draws a gun on Rainey, who overpowers him. Tamada, the mysterious Japanese cook, declares himself neutral. Lund, his sight restored, kills Carlsen.

"It's all right, Miss Simms," he said. "Just killed a skunk. Rainey, git that gun an' attend to the young lady, will you?"

The girl stood in the doorway of her father's cabin, her face frozen to horror, her eyes fixed on Lund with repulsion. As Rainey got the automatic, slipped it into his pocket, and went toward her, she shrank from him. But her voice was for Lund.

"You murderer!" she cried.

Lund grinned at her, but there was no laughter in his eyes.

"We'll thrash that out later, miss," he said. "Now, you men, jump for'ard, all of you. Deming, unlock that door. Jump! Equals, are you? I'll show you who's master on this ship. Wait!"

His voice snapped like the crack of a whip, and all halted, save Deming, who suddenly flitted the key to the lock of the corridor entrance.

"Take this with you," said Lund, pointing to Carlsen's sagging body. "When you git tired of his company, throw him overboard. Jump to it!"

The nearest man took up the body of the doctor and they all fled forward, silently obedient to the man who ordered them.

The girl shuddered. Rainey saw that Lund was exhilarated by his victory, that the primitive fighting brute was prominent. Carlsen had tried to shoot first, goaded to it; his death was deserved; but it seemed to Rainey that Lund's exhibition of savagery was unnecessary. But he also saw that Lund would not heed any protest that he might make, he was still swept on by his course of action, not yet complete.

"I'll borrow Carlsen's sextant," said Lund. "Nigh noon, an' about time I got our reckoning." He went into the doctor's cabin and came out with the instrument, tucking it under his arm as he went on deck.

The girl wheeled into her father's room and shut the door. Rainey heard the click of the bolt on the other side. He listened for a moment, but heard nothing within the skipper's cabin. The swift rush of events was still a jumble. Slowly he went up the companionway to the deck.

CHAPTER VIII.

Honest Simms.

Lund greeted Rainey with a curt nod. Hansen was still at the helm. The crew on duty were standing about alert, their eyes on Lund. They had found a new master, and they were cowed, eager to do his best.

"I'll show this crew they've got a skipper aboard," said Lund. "How's the cap'n?"

Rainey told him.

"We'll see what we can do for him," said Lund. "He's better off without that fakir, that's a cinch. Called me a murderer," he went on with a good-humored laugh. "Got spunk, she has, And she's a trim bit. A slip of a gal, but she's game. An' good-lookin', eh, Rainey?"

He smiled as if the prospect suited him. A suspicion leaped into Rainey's brain. Lund had said he would not see a decent girl harmed. But the man was changed. He had fought and won, and victory shone in his eyes with a glitter that was immune from sympathy, for all his air of good-nature.

He had said that a man under his skin was just an animal. His appraisal of the girl struck Rainey with apprehension. "To the victor belongs the spoils." Somehow the quotation persisted. What if Lund regarded the girl as legitimate loot? He might have talked differently beforehand, to assure himself of Rainey's support.

And Rainey suddenly felt as if his support had been uncalled upon, a frail reed at best. Lund had not needed him; would he need him, save as an aid, not altogether necessary, with Hansen aboard, to run the ship?

He said nothing, but thrust both hands into the side pockets of the pilot coat he had acquired from the ship's stores. The sudden touch of cold steel gave him new courage. He had sworn to protect the girl. If Lund, seeming more like a pirate than ever, with his cold eyes sweeping the horizon, his bulk casting Rainey's into a dwarf's by comparison, attempted to harm Peggy Simms, Rainey resolved to play the part of champion.

He could not shoot like Lund, but he was armed. He felt the mastery of the man. And he felt incompetent beside him. Lund held the power of life and death, not by brute force alone. He was the only navigator aboard, with the skipper seriously ill. As such alone he held them in his hand, once they were out of sight of land.

"Hansen," said Lund, "Mr. Rainey'll relieve you after we've eaten. Come on, Rainey. You ain't lost yore appetite, I hope. Watch me discard that spoon for a knife an' fork. I don't have to play blind man any longer."

Food did not appeal to Rainey. It was Lund's demeanor that gripped him. The giant dismissed Carlsen as unceremoniously as he might have flipped the ash from a cigar, or tossed the stub overboard.

"I've got to tackle those hunters," Lund said. "I expect trouble there, sooner or later. But I'm goin' to lay down the law to 'em. If they come clean, well an' good, they git their original two shares. If not, they don't get a plugged nickel. An' Deming's the one who'll stir up the trouble, take it from me. I'd jest as soon it was war. I don't see as we can help the skipper much 'less we try reverse treatment of what Carlsen did—if we knew what that was. If he gits worse she'll let us know, I reckon. See you later."

Rainey took the dismissal and went up to the relief of Hansen. He did not mention what had happened until the Scandinavian referred to it indirectly.

"They put the doc overboard, sir, soon's Mr. Lund an' you bane go below."

It seemed a summary dismissal of the dead, without ceremony. Yet, for the rite to be authentic, Lund must have presided, and the sea-borne service would have been a mockery under the circumstances. It was the best thing to have done, Rainey felt, but he could not avoid a mental shiver at the thought of the man, so lately vital, his brain alive with energy, sliding through the cold water to the ooze to lie there, sodden, swinging with the sub-sea currents until the ocean scavengers claimed him.

"All right, Hansen," he said in answer, and the man hurried off after his extra detail.

Lund came up after a while, and Rainey told him of the fate of Carlsen's body.

"I figured they'd do about that," commented Lund. "They savvyed he'd come to make suckers out of 'em, an' they dumped him. But they ain't on our side, by a long sight. That Deming is a better man than I thought. He's the main grouch among 'em. Said if I hadn't had a gun he'd have tackled me in the cabin. Meant it, too, though I'd have smashed him. He's sore becuz I said he warn't my equal. I told him if he wanted to try it out, I'd accommodate him. He didn't take it up, an' they'll kid him about it. He'll pack a grudge. I ain't afraid of their knifin' me, not while the skipper's sick. They need me to navigate."

"This might be a good chance for me to handle a sextant," suggested Rainey casually.

Lund shook his head, smiling, but his eyes were hard.

"Not yet, matey," he said. "Not that I don't trust you, but for me to be the only one, jest now, is a sort of life insurance that suits me to carry. They might figger, if you was able to navigate, that they c'd put the screws on you to carry 'em through, with me out of the way. I don't say they could, but they might make it hard for you, an' you ain't got quite the same stake in this I have."

Here was cold logic, but Rainey saw the force of it. Hansen came up early to split the watch and put their schedule right again, and Lund went below with Rainey. Lund ordered Tamada to bring a bottle and glasses, and they sat down at a drink, and took one.

As Lund was raising his glass with a toast of "Here's to luck," the skipper's door opened and the girl appeared. She looked like a ghost. Her hair was disheveled and her eyes stared at them without seeming recognition. But she spoke, in a flat, toneless voice.

"My father is dead! I—" she faltered, swayed and seemed to swoon as she sank toward the floor. Rainey darted forward, but Lund was quicker and swooped her up in his arms as if she had been a feather, took her to the table, set her in a chair, dabbed a napkin in some water and applied it to her brows.

"Chafe her wrists," he ordered Rainey. "Undo that top button of her blouse. That's enough; she ain't got on corsets. She'll come through. Plumb worn out. That's all."

He handled her, deftly as a nurse would a child. Rainey chafed the slender wrists and beat her palms, and soon she opened her eyes and sighed. Then she pulled away from Lund, bending over her, and got to her feet.

"I must go to my father," she said. "He is dead."

They followed her into the cabin and Lund bent over the bunk.

"Looks like it," he whispered to Rainey. Then he tore open the skipper's vest and shirt and laid his head on his chest. The girl made a faint motion as if to stop him, but did not hinder him. She was at the end of her own strength from weariness and worry. Lund suddenly raised his head.

"There's a fluter," he announced. "He ain't gone yet. Get Tamada an' some brandy."

With the dose there came signs of revival, a low moan from the skipper. The girl flew to his side. Tamada, standing by with the bottle, stepped forward, handed the brandy to Rainey, and rolled up the lid of an eye, looking closely at the pupil.

"I study medicine at Tokyo," he said.

"Why didn't ye say so before?" demanded Lund. It did not occur to any of them to doubt Tamada's word. There was an air of professional assurance and an efficiency about him that carried weight. "What can you do for him? There's a medicine chest in Carlsen's room."

"I was hired to cook," said Tamada quietly. "I should not have been permitted to interfere. It is not my business if a white man makes a fool of himself. Now we want morphine and hypodermic syringe."

Tamada rolled up the captain's sleeve. The flesh, shrunken, pallid, was closely spotted with dot-like scars that showed livid, as if the captain had been suffering from some strange rash.

Lund whistled softly. Rainey, too, knew what it meant. The skipper had been a veritable slave to the drug. Carlsen had administered it, prescribed it, used it as a means to bring Simms under his subjection.

"How much d'ye suppose he took at once?" Lund asked the Japanese in a low voice.

"Fifteen grains, I think. Maybe more. Too much! Always too much drug in his veins. Much worse than opium for man."

"Carlsen's work," growled Lund. "Increased the stuff on him till he couldn't do without it. Made him a slave to dope an' Carlsen his boss. He deserved killin' jest for that, the skunk."

Rainey frantically searched through the medicine chest and, finding only five tablets marked Morphine 1 gr. in a bottle, sought elsewhere in vain. And he could find no needle. But he ran across some automatic cartridges and put them in his pockets before he hurried back.

"This is not enough," said Tamada. "And we should have needle. But I dissolve these in galley." And he hurried out. The girl had slipped down on her knees beside the bed, holding her father's hand against her lips, her eyes closed. She seemed to be praying.

Tamada administered the morphine. The beneficial results were apparent. The dry, frightfully sallow skin had changed and Simms was breathing freely, while Tamada, feeling his pulse, nodded affirmatively to the girl's questioning glance.

"We'll have to put in to Unalaska," Rainey said. "There are doctors there." The girl turned toward Lund. He smiled at the intensity of her gaze and pose.

"I play fair, Miss Peggy," he said. "Rainey, change the course."

The Karluk came about as Rainey reached the deck and gave his orders. Then he returned to the cabin. The captain had opened his eyes.

"Peggy!" he murmured. "Carlsen, where is he? Lund! Good God, Lund, you can see?"

"Keep quiet as you can," said Tamada. "Something in his voice made the skipper shift his look to the Japanese."

"Where's Carlsen?" he asked again. "He can't come now," said Tamada. Under the urge of the drug the skipper's brain seemed abnormally clear, his intuition heightened.

"Carlsen's dead?" he asked. Then, shifting to Lund: "You killed him, Jim?"

Lund nodded.

"How much morphine did you give me?"

"Five grains."

"It's not enough. It won't last. There isn't any more!" he flashed out, with sudden energy, trying to raise himself. "I'll be gone in an hour or two. Got to talk while this lasts. Jim—about leavin' you that time. I could have come back. I had words about the farmer that endeavored to secure an equal footing in the competition for a lower cost of production. In Western Canada the farmer has come through the dark era with that fortitude and determination so peculiar to a new country, and is meeting the changed situation with energy and a smile. In Western Canada the farmer is not hampered by an annual overhead expense of heavy interest on high-priced land. He is able to produce at a minimum, because his land value seldom exceeds $50 an acre.

Owing to the fact that he is farming land the price of which is from $25 to $50 an acre, producing crops of wheat running from 20 to 40 bushels per acre, and other grains in proportion, he is able to produce at a low cost. In addition to this, a fact which should not be lost sight of, is the large area that he can farm at low cost, giving him an added advantage in reducing the cost of production.

The corn that the farmer fully expected to bring him over a dollar a bushel, he saw carried away to the market, and bring back a 30 or 40 cent check. Wheat for the whole of Canada averaged 80 cents a bushel in 1921 as compared with $1.02 in 1920; oats 87 cents as against 83 cents; barley 47 cents as against 53 cents. Other grain prices similarly fell.

While other parts of the continent, where grain-growing is carried on, have suffered in like manner by deflation in prices, they have had to face a much higher cost in production, such as high rents, high-priced farms, and high taxes. Farmers had calculated on receiving war or nearly war figures for their grain and therefore were amply justified in submitting to the tax that soaring land prices set upon them.

Western Canada fortunately did not suffer from inflated land prices. Therefore, when grain prices fell, the losses were not so great; they did not cut out the margin of profit, excepting in some cases where some climatic conditions caused it.

FARM CHEAP LAND

Why Western Canada Agriculturists Are Smiling.

Low Overhead Expense and Bountiful Crops Have Enabled Them to Overcome Agricultural Depression.

The recent agricultural depression brought to the eyes of the world the fact that one of its basic industries was likely to suffer a severe blow unless steps were taken to secure a remedy. Physician after physician applied remedies, but even parliamentary and newspaper were unable to place their finger on the pulse that would respond. As it appears today, it was a spasmodic wave due to the ebb and flow of the tide of readjustment that was bound to follow a disturbance such as the Great War caused.

Psychologically it was bound to change; there was certain to be a reflex movement that would bring agricultural conditions back to the place where they normally and rightly belong.

Efficiency and sound business judgment are needed more in agriculture today than ever before and are as important to the farmer as to a railroad company, or to a great steel corporation.

The farmer must endeavor to secure an equal footing in the competition for a lower cost of production. In Western Canada the farmer has come through the dark era with that fortitude and determination so peculiar to a new country, and is meeting the changed situation with energy and a smile. In Western Canada the farmer is not hampered by an annual overhead expense of heavy interest on high-priced land. Soy Beans in Cultivated Rows
For one who has never grown soy beans the cultivated row plan will probably be more satisfactory for the first year or two and may be found more profitable as a permanent plan. A whole lot of cultivation can be done on any seed bed before the seed is planted and this is true of soy beans. The date for planting is the same as for corn so there is time for the proper preparation of the seed bed. Plowing, disking, harrowing and if possible rolling will put the soil in good shape for soy beans. A good way to plant them is to plug up some of the holes in the wheat drill so as to leave the open holes from 28 to 32 inches apart. The beans ought to drop out so they will fall about 2 inches apart in the drill row. It will take about one-half bushel of beans to plant an acre, small varieties of seed about one-third of a bushel. Plant them shallow not over one and one-third inches deep. The cheapest way to cultivate is with a weeder going crosswise of the rows when beans are two inches and four inches high. This may be followed by a cultivation with a corn cultivator and other cross cultivation with a weeder. The weeder keeps the weeds out of the row and levels off the ground. Soy beans should not be disturbed when in bloom nor when leaves are wet with rain or heavy dew. They should be cut for seed when the beans are in the hard dough stage and before the pods show signs of bursting open. They may be cut with a mower and raked in a windrow after curing in the swath until leaves begin to get brittle. Perhaps a little better way is to cut them with a grain binder and adjust the tension on the twine so the bundles will be loosely bound. Stand three or four bundles together until the hay is cured.

The seed may be thrashed with an ordinary grain separator but should have speed of cylinder reduced to prevent splitting the beans.

Soy beans are at least equal in feeding value to oil meal and some experiments show them to be better. Fifteen bushels of beans per acre is a fair yield. Compared with the present price of oil meal 15 bushels of beans are worth $24,000 for feed besides the bean straw which is a valuable roughage.

Medium Early Yellow, Mongol and Ito San are good varieties for hay or seed.

One who has never grown beans should not plant a big acreage the first year. Plant two or three acres and get experience in handling the crop.

Soy beans may some day replace a large part of all of the high priced protein feeds which would mean a substantial reduction in the cost of producing milk.

BEWARE THE SCALE

The season of 1921 was the most serious from the standpoint of San Jose scale infestations that growers had known for several years. This condition has led to much discussion, and the efficiency of lime-sulfur in the control of scale has been questioned. Notwithstanding this belief on the part of some it is certainly true that lime-sulfur solution properly applied at the right season will control scale. No one has shown that a San Jose scale wet with lime-sulfur at the proper strength is not killed.

The factors which have brought about the present situation are doubtless the mild winter of 1920-1921 followed by a favorable season for scale development and lack of natural enemies. The fall of 1921 was extremely favorable for scale development. Unless something extraordinary happens following the writing of this letter (2-21-22) very few scale will have been killed by low temperature during 1921-1922. As a result, the scale situation in 1922 will likely be worse than in 1921. It behooves the orchardist, therefore, to be extremely careful in the manufacture of home made lime-sulfur and in the dilution of both home made and commercial.

The correct dilution for dry lime-sulfur is 15 pounds to 50 gallons of water.

Even though the above directions are carried out the scale will not be controlled unless the trees are thoroughly sprayed, which means every part of the tree above ground must be wet.

The best time to apply lime-sulfur to control scale is in early spring, just as the first buds are showing green. In large orchards the application must be begun early enough to insure its completion before the season advances too far.

Will Farmers Co-operate?

Will Illinois farmers co-operate? The answer to this question is found in the results achieved by the following co-operative commodity marketing associations of producers in the state all of which have been supported by the county farm bureaus and the Illinois Agriculture association.

The U. S. Grains Growers, Inc., has piled up a membership of 13,000 farmers in 14 counties and 334 elevators in the state since last August and plans to start immediately a Chicago sales agency to market the 1922 crop.

The Producers Live Stock Commission association, beginning business January 2, 1922, now leads fifty commission firms at the East St. Louis stock yards in the amount of business done.

The Stephenson County Milk Marketing company is now located in its own $30,000 plant and is receiving $85,000 pounds of milk daily, after starting only last September.

The Illinois Fruit Exchange, begun last year after the terrific freezes, now has a membership of 1,000 growers in nine counties and plans to market a large share of the 1922 southern Illinois fruit crop.

Public Service Co.
OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

To the Citizens of Lake County:—

The importance of electing suitable persons to public office is too obvious to require comment. The question is—do all those who fully recognize this fact use diligence in determining who is suitable?

I am a candidate for the office of Probate Judge—there are others. The one elected becomes your servant for four years. Since the duties are exacting and important to all, you certainly will exercise the prudence necessary to the safe employment of other servants. This means the investigation of our respective fitness for the position. I ask for nothing more—you doubtless agree that I am entitled to nothing less. Upon the results of your impartial inquiry. I am content to rest my case on the day of the primaries—April 11th.

Respectfully,

To the Voters of Lake County

I am submitting my candidacy for the office of Probate Judge of Lake County subject to the decision of the Primaries on April 11th next.

Have lived in Lake County all my life. Attended Ivanhoe Public School, Lake Forest Academy, and Northwestern and Princeton Universities. Taught school in this County ten years. Have been engaged in the active practice of the law at our local bar the past fifteen years. Was Master in Chancery of the Circuit Court during the years 1919-1921.

If elected, I will perform the duties of the office faithfully and treat everyone having business with the office, with the same kindness and consideration, that I would ask for my own family under like circumstances.

I respectfully ask that you consider my candidacy, and if not actually pledged to some other candidate, I would be pleased to receive your vote and support for this office.

Yours very truly,

Live Stock Improvement Campaigns Effective in Increasing Dairy Production.

The average dairy cow in this country produces annually about 4,000 pounds of milk and 100 pounds of butter fat. According to 40,000 yearly individual cow records just tabulated by the United States Department of Agriculture, the average cow-testing as: socalation cow produces 5,080 pounds of milk and 240 pounds of butter fat a year. The world's records are 37,381.4 pounds of milk and 1,252 pounds of butter fat. The average dairy cow has plenty of room for climbing, and such commendable live stock improvement campaigns as the "Better Sires—Better Stock" drive will be effective in increasing the efficiency and production of American dairy stock.

ROSES SUITABLE FOR HOME LAWNS

Native Species Are Most Suitable for the Yard and for Border Planting.

THE PRUNING IS IMPORTANT

Different Treatments Required Where Blossoms Are to Be Produced for Different Purposes—Heavy Manuring Essential.

Advice as to the varieties of roses best suited to a particular region is best obtained from the nearest grower or nurseryman. A different type of rose is needed for each of the various purposes for which roses are used. Those which are suitable for lawns or borders will not give satisfactory cut flowers; special kinds are best for arbors or trellises and other ornamental purposes. In the opinion of the United States Department of Agriculture, roses are not very satisfactory for hedges, as most types are neither sufficiently compact nor sufficiently branched to make a really good hedge.

Native species, and those least modified by man's crossing and selection are most suitable for lawn and border planting. Border roses should have little pruning, the removal of the dead wood and the cutting of the whole bush to the ground every five to eight years being the best way of handling most varieties.

Climbing roses used for arbors and trellises may be managed either to give an abundance of bloom or to produce shade, but they cannot do both satisfactorily, and they are not well adapted to the production of shade as many other plants. Climbing roses should be pruned just after blooming by having the wood of the previous year's growth removed.

Cut-flower roses need clean culture, severe pruning and special care; therefore they should be planted by themselves in secluded beds and should not be used to beautify the grounds in place of the roses appropriate for lawns and borders. Cut-flower roses should be cut each spring to within six inches or one foot of the ground for finest blooms, or one-third to one-half the wood should be left if the object is a large quantity of blooms.

The essentials for satisfactory rose-growing are a well-drained retentive soil, thoroughly enriched, preferably with rotted manure. Cut-flower roses particularly need heavy annual manuring. Special care must be exercised to prevent the roots from drying when out of the ground for transplanting. Dormant roses should have from one-half to two-thirds of the wood removed at the time of transplanting. Watchfulness is the price of success with roses.

"Bucking the Line" at the Majestic Sunday

Maurice Flynn, recently elevated to stardom by William Fox, plays an adventurous role in "Bucking the Line," his first starring picture, which will be open at the Majestic theatre next Sunday. It is based on the popular novel "The Real Man," by Francis Lynde.

The new Fox star has been an adventurer through all the years of his young life, and has been famous in this respect from the time he started the football world by his effective and spectacular playing as fullback on Yale University team to his training of fighting airmen during the war, at Miami and Pensacola.

Son of a well-known New York financier, young Flynn presented himself in his father's office after graduation from college. Joseph A. Flynn looked at his big, handsome son and smiled.

"I think you need a little more adventure before you settle down Maurice," he said. "Go and make your own way in the world, wherever the spirit moves you, and when you have proved that you can take care of yourself, I'll buy you the best ranch in Colorado."

Maurice went out into the world. He punched cattle in South Texas; he mined in Mexico when the country was in the throes of active revolution; he toiled alongside of Indians in the hop fields of the northwest; and through two years he added to his education in the great school of experience. Then his father called him home and presented him with the promised ranch, 3,000 acres in Colorado, where the young adventurer set about raising beef cattle. The war intervened and he entered the Naval Aviation branch of the service, being assigned as instructor. At the close of his service he entered his father's office to give a finance trial, and found it little to his liking. At length he decided to live his adventures over again on the screen, and went into motion pictures—soon thereafter joining the Wm. Fox organization.

Handsome, athletic, standing well above six feet, and utterly fearless in whatever he was called upon to do, his rise in his chosen career was rapid. His elevation to stardom had been expected by his admirers for some time.

Nels Christian Jensen Dies After Lingular Illness

thiasm to all the means employed for the uplift of humanity.

A good neighbor, always anxious to help every one in need, a good husband and father, who cared enough for his children's real good to enforce proper discipline, but withal, kindly and full of very genuine love and tenderness, Mr. Jensen was almost an ideal man.

Besides the devoted wife, he is survived by the two daughters, Mrs. Anna Marie Jensen and Miss Ella Gertrude Jensen, and his mother, over eighty years old, still in Denmark where three sisters also survive. He has two cousins in this country.

After a lingering illness, he passed to the better land, March 18, 1922.

The funeral services were conducted from the home and the Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday afternoon, in Antioch, by the Reverend Manly J. Mumford.

SUNDAY SERVICES:

Sunday School	9:45
Morning Service	11:00
Epworth League	7:00
Evening Service	7:45

A steady increase in attendance upon the public preaching services is resulting from the increased attention to that phase of the church work.
More attention is now being called by all the churches to the vital advantages for everybody in church attendance.
The multitudes are rapidly coming to see as never before that every man and woman in every community will find in the public services of God's house a source of strength and enrichment and refining of character and life which it is impossible to find anywhere else. The logic of this is becoming so clear to the millions that not only former churchgoers, but literally millions who have not heretofore been churchgoers, have lately come to see that if they fail to take advantage of the enriching services of God's house they are suffering the loss of the most precious opportunity they have for the real culture of their lives. And accordingly there are already millions of people now in attendance upon the services of God's house who just a few years ago never went to church.

This is largely due to the fact that the churches are casting away a former over-modesty and plainly telling the people what there is for them at church. It is believed that soon there will be no person in any community who does not know that if he misses the services of the house of God, he is missing the greatest means of his own culture in his community and suffering a loss which he cannot possibly make up anywhere else. This is a part of the church campaign for this year.

Another feature of the church's program for the year is the Easter ingathering, to get as many as possible to give themselves definitely to Christ and enlist in His army, which is His church. All who are for Christ and not against Him are being urged to line up and let the world know it by enlisting under His banner in His army, His church. Encouraging reports are now in of large numbers of recruits to all the churches.

In addition to these items, the Methodist church is in the midst of its great, world-wide titling campaign to get its total membership definitely committed to paying regularly the tenth of income to the work of God, as already hundreds of thousands have been doing for years and vast numbers of new ones have begun to do the past few weeks, in every part of the world. Very happy experiences are already reported by some of the new titers here, as well as by those here who have been tithing for many years.

The motto is becoming more gen-

"The Night Rose" at Crystal Saturday

When the cast for the new Goldwyn production of Leroy Scott's new melodrama of the underworld, "The Night Rose," was assembled, a group of leading men and women were given the principal parts. All of them have been featured alone in former pictures; and now they may be seen together in the photoplay coming to the Crystal Theatre, Saturday.

Lon Chaney has been regarded as the most powerful character actor on the screen today; and in "The Night Rose," he impersonates a king of the underworld in commanding fashion.
Lentrice Joy and Cullen Landis are the victims of the villain's machinations, while John Bowers is the honest district attorney who tried to clean up the town. Besides these sterling players, Betty Schade, Edythe
Chapman, Maurice B. Flynn, Mary
Warren and Richard Tucker have important roles.

The photoplay was directed by Wallace Worsley, who also directed Mr.
Chaney's masterly conceived character of Blizard in "The Penalty."
The author of "The Night Rose," Leroy Scott, was formerly a newspaper man and then a social worker.
He has come into personal contact with numerous underworld characters and knows the psychology of the man who has lost all fear of the law in the carrying out of his crimes.

One of the most magnificent ball room scenes ever staged was screened for "The Night Rose." It is not only picturesque, but also the background for the climax of the story.

How Firestone Has Reduced the Cost of Tire Service

Size	Jan. 1921 Prices	Jan. 1922 Prices	Reduction
30 x 3 Fabric	$18.75	$ 9.85	47%
30 x 3 1/2 "	22.50	11.65	48%
30 x 3 1/2 Cord	35.75	17.50	51%
32 x 4 "	56.55	32.40	43%
33 x 4 1/2 "	67.00	42.85	36%
33 x 5 "	81.50	52.15	36%

HOW the cost of building quality tires has been brought down to the lowest level in history was explained by H. S. Firestone, President of the Company, to the stockholders at the annual meeting on December 15, 1921.

1. All inventories and commitments at or below the market.
2. Increased manufacturing efficiency and volume production reduced factory overhead 58%.
3. Selling costs reduced 38%.

Mr. Firestone stated, "This reduction in prices is made possible by our unusually advantageous buying facilities, and the enthusiasm, loyalty and determination of our 100% stockholding organization.

"Due credit must be given to Firestone dealers who are selling Firestone tires on a smaller margin of profit. This brings every Firestone saving direct to the car-owner."

The saving through first cost plus the saving through high mileage doubles
Firestone economy and is daily adding new fame to the Firestone principle of service—

SPENT HALF HER TIME IN BED

Farmer's Wife Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman

Carter's Creek, Tenn.—"Three years ago I was almost an invalid. I spent half of my time in bed, being afflicted with a trouble which women of a certain age are apt to have. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am a well woman now and have been for two years. I can work as well as any one who is younger and as I am a farmer's wife I have plenty to do for I cultivate my own garden, raise many chickens and do my own housework. You may publish this letter as I am ready to do anything to help other women as I have been so well and happy since my troubles are past."—Mrs. E. T. GALLOWAY, Carter's Creek, Tenn.

Most women find plenty to do. If they are upset with some female ailment and troubled with such symptoms as Mrs. Galloway had, the smallest duty seems a mountain. If you find it hard to keep up, if you are nervous and irritable, without ambition and out of sorts generally, give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. We believe it will help you greatly, for it has helped others.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again. Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

"Hard luck?" said Slim. "I'll say I had hard luck. The company commander came around this morning and bawled out the top, and I wasn't there to hear it."—The Leatherneck.

U. S.-BRITISH PLOT CHARGED

Senator Borah Credits Such an Admission to Morgan Lawyer.

SENATE DEBATE IS VITRIOLIC

Speech of Paul D. Cravath Is Said to Have Announced a "Secret Understanding" for the Control of the Pacific.

Washington, March 22.—A speech by Paul D. Cravath, attorney for J. P. Morgan and other international banking interests, was introduced in the senate as evidence of a "secret understanding" between the United States and Great Britain for control of the Pacific in connection with the four-power treaty.

Senator Borah of Idaho produced a stenographic transcript of the Cravath speech. In the opinion of the senate authorities the "secret agreement" mentioned by the Morgan attorney constituted not only an act of treachery to the other powers in the treaty, but would be undeniably provocation of war.

The Cravath speech was delivered at a private gathering of the Council of Foreign Relations, an association of New York bankers, held in New York city February 17. Although the meeting was not open to the public, Senator Borah obtained the reporter's transcript of what Cravath said in assuring his fellow bankers that the secret understanding had been formulated at the arms conference.

Opponents of the treaty saw it as an effective weapon by which to defeat ratification.

Lodge and Underwood, members of the American delegation, denied that such an agreement existed. Borah came back with the statement that, although the knew nothing about it, he refused to believe the story untrue.

Later in the day Borah was shown a statement issued by Cravath in his New York office denying the existence of such an agreement, to which Borah replied:

"I have the record. I am satisfied with it."

The most important development of the publication of Cravath's remarks was the inauguration of a movement to have the treaty sent back to the foreign relations committee and have Secretary Hughes, Elihu Root and Cravath summoned as witnesses to tell what they know about it.

A motion to recommit the treaty will be made by Senator Shields of Tennessee. This will put Lodge and the rest of the Republican majority on record as to whether they want all the facts disclosed or will insist upon a vote to ratify without any more information than the senate now has.

Lodge visited the White House and discussed the treaty situation with President Harding, who expressed a desire to have it ratified without the Harding-Brandee reservation now before the senate. Lodge told the President this could not be done; that unless the reservation is attached the treaty will be rejected.

Borah produced the Cravath document at the very beginning of the senate session. At once it plunged the senate into the most vitriolic and exciting debate which has been witnessed since the strife over the treaty started.

Lodge and Underwood lost their tempers in most righteous fashion in denying they ever discussed the treaty with Cravath or with any other representative of the international banking interests. Both admitted to a vague and hazy notion of who Cravath is, but declared they did not talk with him.

In bringing the Cravath statement before the senate Senator Borah said the interpretation given by Cravath constituted an alliance, adding:

"Without regard to what the four-power treaty does in the matter of forming an alliance, there is no question that the secret understanding does form an alliance. Coming as it does from a man who professes to know, the statement by Mr. Cravath becomes of considerable importance. It simply discloses that once we enter into the business of making a political alliance there is no limit to which we may not go in arriving at secret understandings that bind us to our future course of action."

Taking the floor to deny having talked with Cravath, Underwood said: "I never made such a statement to Mr. Cravath, or to any one else. So far as I know there is no truth in it." Then Lodge got up and said: "Mr. Cravath had no authority from me to make such a statement, as I have had no conversation at all with him, and, so far as I know, there is not a word of truth in it. I thought I knew something about the treaty, but I never heard of any such understanding having been made."

Are you as justly proud as this boy's mother?

DARYL WILSON is the kind of baby every mother wants her child to be. He is strong, sturdy, handsome. He has been voted the best baby in two baby shows in Milwaukee, Wis., where he lives.

Mrs. Wilson attributes his fine health to Eagle Brand, on which he was raised. Mrs. Wilson was an Eagle Brand baby too, so of course she brought up her little son on it. This is one of the thousands of cases where Eagle Brand has been the accepted baby food for several generations in the same family. In some cases grandmother, mother, and child were all reared on it. For Eagle Brand has been the standard for sixty-four years.

No thoughtful mother would experiment with her baby. Mother's milk is best, of course, but if it fails for any reason, Eagle Brand is the natural substitute. Eagle Brand is not a "prepared" food at all. It is nothing but pure milk and pure sugar combined. Mothers all over the country have written us of the wonderful results they have had in feeding it to their babies. And doctors recommend it in stubborn feeding cases—it is so very digestible.

Eagle Brand Milk is entirely safe, pure and uniform. Each can is like the last, so that there is not the slightest variation in baby's food—a most important consideration according to Improved Weather Map. Three-dimension maps are being made by the United States weather bureau as a result of the development of flying, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. It was found necessary to chart wind directions at different levels for the airman. A weather map carrying wind direction arrows for different levels is photographed from two angles, and when the two pictures are seen through a stereoscope, they blend, bringing the posts and arrows into strong relief.
